

Hope Carmichael

Jordan Price Wall Gray Jones & Carlton, PLLC

Experience Hope is a leading authority on legal issues affecting condominiums and homeowners associations in North Carolina, and has litigated hundreds of cases in her career involving architectural and general covenant enforcement, collection of assessments, board governance and development issues. She regularly teaches seminars to board members and managers and devotes a good deal of her practice to advising community associations on the interpretation restrictive covenants, bylaws and other legal documents governing community associations. Additionally, she has contributed to the drafting of most important legislation affecting planned communities and condominiums in North Carolina since 2005.

Background Hope has been licensed to practice law in North Carolina since 1991 and has focused a majority of her practice on community associations law throughout her career. She spent a good deal of time in her early career litigating family law cases as well as various commercial litigation and contract cases in state, federal and appellate courts. Since 2005, her practice has been devoted exclusively to community association and condominium law, and she feels her greatest strength in this area is her determined problem solving ability. She regularly speaks to industry groups including attorneys, realtors and community association managers and board members to present educational seminars. In 2012, Hope pursued certification as a North Carolina Certified Mediator with the sole intent to help mediate and resolve contested matters for homeowners associations and owners within those associations. She serves on the Real Property Section Council for the North Carolina Bar Association where she chairs the Subcommittee on Homeowners Associations.

Education & Training Hope is a 1991 graduate of the University at North Carolina School of Law in Chapel Hill and a 1988 graduate (cum laude) of Salem College in Winston Salem, North Carolina.

Employment Hope is a member of the firm of Jordan Price Wall Gray Jones & Carlton in Raleigh where she has practiced her entire career.

Personal Hope has been married to Randy Carmichael since 1997, and they have two adored daughters, ages 7 and 13. She volunteers extensively with the public schools, her church and in the community through the mother-daughter organization, National Charity League.
